Nada Andric
SOM Associate Partner

Nada Andric's interiors are polished and sophisticated, yet contextual and approachable. There is beauty, but there is reason behind the beauty—and that is why her work is respected and published across the globe.

As head of the architectural interiors studio at Skidmore, Owings & Merrill, Ms Andric directs all aspects of interior design of her projects, including the architecture, engineering—right down to the furnishings and equipment.

And she's also a distinguished expert in her field who's grace and elegance is not only apparent in her work, but in her personality as well.

Ms. Andric has extensive experience in interior architecture and design. Her body of work includes corporate office interiors, executive suites, commercial interiors, high-end hotels and residential, airports, convention centers and assembly spaces and public spaces in numerous office buildings. Other work includes the design of furniture, textiles and accessories.

Ms. Andric is well respected for her extensive, award-winning work that offers thoughtful solutions to design problems while maintaining integrity of design. Her work is frequently featured in prominent publications. She has served on design juries and routinely participates in round table discussions of important issues in the profession. She has taught at the School of the Art Institute of Chicago and served as a trustee at Roger Williams University, School of Architecture. She has been appointed to the Art Institute Committee on Architecture.
